LOCAL DOCTORS BRING NEW ERA OF TREATMENT TO ABBOTSFORD

ABBOTSFORD, BC - Do you have a soft-tissue or sport related injury that has been plaguing you for months? How about stress problems such as tennis elbow, rotator cuff injuries or carpal tunnel syndrome? Laser therapy has been brought to the forefront of the rehabilitation world, is used to heal such conditions and is now available in Abbotsford.

Canadian Laser Therapy (CLT) is part of an established and innovative health and wellness clinic in Abbotsford that provides an alternative health option to alleviate pain and soft tissue discomfort due to everyday stress, muscular over-use and many acute and chronic injuries; all with the use of low-intensity lasers.

Dr. Bill Jacobs and Dr. Todd Marshall, co-owners of Canadian Laser Therapy have established themselves in the community for over 10 years through their practice, Sumas Mountain Chiropractic and Wellness Centre. This new venture, although separate from one another will allow their clinical expertise and knowledge to be brought forward in a well-rounded package that will whole-heartedly benefit the patient.

“We continually aim to see our patients get healthy and well in the shortest amount of time possible,” says Dr. Jacobs. “By providing the latest in current and cutting edge therapy, we are able to offer our patients a variety of options to treat their injuries.”

Low intensity laser therapy is a highly versatile, curative therapy that utilizes low and high intensity wave lengths of light to help heal sports injuries, inflammatory conditions, wounds, arthritis, degenerative conditions, skeletal injuries, and much more. Laser therapy uses the body's natural reaction to specific frequencies of light to enhance and increase the production of biochemical or cellular energy resulting in a curative treatment for a vast variety of conditions.

Laser therapy substantially accelerates cellular healing and enhances the body's natural defense and repairs components in the presence of injury, inflammation, arthritis and certain disease processes.

With the benefits of laser therapy being so positive, Canadian Laser Therapy has also had the opportunity to treat many local and national athletes as well as players of the BC Lions with the use of laser therapy.

“We are committed to the athletes of our community in ensuring that they can get back to the game or sport they love in a timely manner,” says Dr. Marshall. “By modifying the effects and limiting the duration of inflammation and enhancing specific repair and healing processes, laser therapy is consistent in providing pain relief, reducing injury damage and loss of function.”
